ONE DEAD, MANY HURT IN W. P. A. RIOT

DER FUEHRER ENSLAVING THOUSANDS OF CZECHS

By H. R. Knickerbocker

PARIS, July 15—What Hitler means to do determines today the major policies of every European country. The continent's opinion of his intentions is now built on the Fuehrer's acts, not his words. Not only whether, where and when he is going to war, but what he would do with a country which he either defeated or which surrendered to him, is a matter of acute concern.

Hence Nazi behaviour in their "protectorate" of Bohemia and Moravia has been studied carefully.

The record now available from the rigidly policed and censored territories of the "protectorate" indicates that the Nazi effort is "removal or enslavement," if not immediate extermination, of the "present occupiers," and the confiscation of their wealth.

"Extermination" has not gone beyond what reliable observers express as an "unknown number of summary executions occurring daily." It is estimated that 10,000 prisoners are in concentration camp.

Impression Watched

These figures represent what the Germans sincerely describe as mild administration of lands which are still nominally "autonomous." The effort has not yet been officially abandoned to represent the German occupation as "requested." Czechs believe that this pretence is being upheld, and German rule kept "mild" because Hitler desires not to give other prospective "protectorates" such as Hungary or Jugoslavia too bad an impression of what their submission would mean.

The German army is said to dislike the job of repression and to attempt, without success, to establish friendly relations with the native population. All harsh measures are imposed by the Gestapo, or secret state police.

To date an estimated 200,000 Czech men have been conscripted, formed in labor gangs, and taken to various parts of the Reich to perform compulsory work. These men and their relatives regard themselves as slaves. Some of them have been employed in harvesting, but most have been put to work on the fortifications along Germany's eastern frontiers, facing Poland.

They are distributed in groups not too large to encourage mutiny, and are said to be treated fairly well so long as they do not refuse duty or attempt to escape. They are paid a nominal wage.

Million Available

It is believed that this conscription of Czech labor will be considerably extended even in peace time, while in war time the effort will be made to impress most of the able-bodied Bohemian and Moravian men to labor in the Reich and thus release German man power for the army. The Germans estimate they might obtain 1,000,000 laborers in this fashion, but the Czechs assert any such attempt will shatter on their resistance and sabotage.

Ordinarily it might be considered impossible to impress against their will such large numbers of laborers. It might be supposed that unwilling conscripts could succeed in avoiding labor by refusing to work and accepting concentration camp. But again the Gestapo's methods have hitherto proved effective in breaking the resistance of the most stubborn "slacker."

To these examples of "removal and enslavement" comes an impressive list of confiscated property, now enlarged and authenticated by official and semi-official German statements.

It is headed by the famous store of the $40,000,000 of Czech gold which had been entrusted by the Czech government to the

She Asks for Job - - Gets It

SUSAN HAYWARD, petite, lovely, red-headed model, fresh from Brooklyn, walked into a Hollywood studio one day and asked a director for a job as a movie actress—and, wonder of wonders, she got it. Above are two photos of the new Hollywood "find."

Congress Moves Toward August 1 Adjournment

WASHINGTON, July 15—House leaders today mapped a plan to clear decks August 1 and pave the way for early adjournment of congress if the senate fails to consider neutrality legislation.

The log-jam in the house was broken when the house banking committee, after a bitter fight, reported the $800,000,000 slum clearance and low cost housing bill, and the Interstate Commerce Committee reported the Lea railroad-relief bill.

Both measures may be rushed to the floor next week. Both have been passed by the senate, though in different form, and must be considered in conference.

Important measures slated for house action next week include the Hatch "clean politics" bill, the Smith resolution for investigation of the National Labor Relations board and Wagner Labor Act operations, and the Barden bill revising and liberalizing the wage-hour act.

The Wagner-Steagall housing bill was reported by the banking committee after foes wrote into it an amendment requiring local housing authorities to make a 10 percent contribution in land or cash.

The amendment, strongly opposed by the administration, was softened by a provision that it would not be retroactive, and would not apply to present commitments. In an effort to win support of rural members, the committee allocated $200,000,000 for rural housing.

CLAYPOOL A VISITOR

Congressman Harold Claypool, of Chillicothe, home for a few days rest, said in a visit to Circleville Friday that the session should be ended by August 1. "Sam Rayburn," (one of the house leaders,) "told me that he would do everything he can to end it by that time," Claypool said.

HOPE LOST FOR 27 MEN IN MINE

Nine Workmen Escape Pit In Providence, Ky.; Gas Blamed

PROVIDENCE, Ky., July 15—Bodies of 14 of the 27 miners trapped deep underground by an explosion at the Divin mine were brought to the surface on stretchers today by rescuers who said all had perished.

PROVIDENCE, Ky., July 15 — As anguished families stood fearfully by, hope was virtually abandoned today for 27 men caught underground by an explosion in the Divin soft coal mine near Providence.

Nine out of the thirty-six at work in the mine reached safety after the blast, but as the hours passed without further word, it was believed the others had either been killed outright or gassed to death.

On the chance, however, that at least a few remained alive, skilled rescue workers inched their way slowly forward in the perilous attempt to reach the danger spot, nearly 2½ miles from the entrance of the mine and 181 feet underground.

James Gold, outside foreman of the mine, explained the rescue crews were in constant peril and forced to reconnoiter each step they took.

Gas Masks Dangerous

Their gas masks, he said, might prove inadequate to a thick layer of "black damp" or mine gas. Thus, as they moved forward, they had to patch the chinks and cracks blown open in the mine walls by the explosion in order that fresh air being pumped in behind them did not filter out.

With the walls of the tunnel or "entry" intact they were able to push in fair safety in a protecting pocket of the clean air.

The exact cause of the blast was not determined, but Gold said it was likely the workers had struck one of the rare pockets of gas, and that it had been ignited by a spark.

He said it was unlikely the men were trapped behind or buried under a fall of rock. They had either been blown to death, gassed, or were still lying on the floor of the tunnel, their faces pressed into the ground to catch what air might filter through and waiting for the rescue they Tomorrow Hitler will speak in Munich in connection with the German art festival, but his talk is likely to be confined to art subjects.

GIRL, 17, FEARED SNATCHED AFTER RIDE ON BICYCLE

RAVENNA, O., July 15 — Portage county authorities today investigated the possibility of a kidnaping in the disappearance of 17-year-old Bernice Allen, of Brady Lake, near Ravenna.

The girl failed to return home after riding to Kent on her bicycle Thursday evening, and has not been reported since. A junior in Kent Roosevelt high school, the girl was described as an attractive blonde.

Chief Deputy R. A. Fitzgerald said a kidnaping theory was being considered, but that he was inclined to believe Bernice had decided on the spur of the moment to visit friends or relatives. Intensive search of the two miles between the girl's home and her destination in Kent showed no trace of the bicycle.

Howard C. Allen, the girl's father, is a bricklayer and stone mason.

TWO BRUISED IN ACCIDENTS ON COUNTY'S ROADS

Two persons suffered minor injuries in auto accidents Friday night.

Jay Gould Minser, 60, of Main street, Kingston, was bruised at 7:45 p. m. when the car he was driving overturned in the bridge on the Kingston pike about four miles south of Circleville.

Minser was driving south. When the car entered the bridge the right rear fender struck the structure. The car then swerved to the other side of the bridge with the front wheel hitting the structure. This overturned the car. It was pulled from the bridge with a truck. Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver, who investigated the accident, said the car was owned by Howard Minser, also of Kingston.

Mrs. James Brigner, Circleville Route 2, was bruised at 11:15 p. m. Friday when the car in which she was riding was involved in a collision on Route 104 north of Route 22.

Mrs. Brigner was riding in an auto driven by William Henry Drake, Lockbourne. The other car involved was owned and driven by Robert S. Myers, of Good Hope, O. Myers was going south and Drake north.

FANNIE BRICE SUES

CHICAGO, July 15 — Fannie Brice, screen and radio comedienne, today had a $750,000 damage suit on file against the Twentieth-Century-Fox film corporation, several screen players and eight theatre companies. The bill charges defamation of character for the alleged portrayal of incidents in her life in the picture "Rose of Washington Square." An injunction was also sought to prohibit further showing of the film.

SCANDAL TRAPS HUEY'S DOCTOR

Clarence Lorio Named With Smith And Caldwell In Fraud Indictments

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15 —In wanton disrespect of legend that the heirs of the late Huey P. Long were sacrosanct in the state of Louisiana, an East Baton Rouge parish grand jury today laid bare the scandals of Louisiana State university with the return of 28 indictments.

The avalanche of true bills, descending on this sorely besieged state capital in one thunderous, explosive report, buried even deeper the already harassed Dr. James Monroe Smith, resigned president of Louisiana State university.

The report, made to Judge Charles A. Holcombe, also ensnared Dr. Clarence T. Lorio, crown prince of the pro-Long faction in Baton Rouge; George Caldwell, 300-pound ex-building superintendent of L.S.U. and E. N. Jackson, university business manager.

Although the scope of the grand jury report was far greater than anyone had dared anticipate, reports swept the capital that this was merely the beginning of a series of revelations.

Startling as were the indictments, 23 of which were against Dr. Smith who already is in jail on a charge of embezzling $100,000, even more sensational was the revelation that months before his market ambitions collapsed the ex-university head had laid the ground-work for his defense.

This, in effect, was revealed in one indictment which specifically charged that Dr. Smith forged a resolution which set forth that his market speculation was for the benefit of a non-existent university endowment fund.

Only two days ago Dr. Smith, explaining his attempt to make himself master of the world's wheat to New Orleans District At-

EFFORTS TO END HARLAN MINING TROUBLE START

HARLAN, Ky., July 15—Under pressure from the federal government, the Harlan Coal Operators association and the United Mine Workers union today reopened negotiations to end their long dispute.

A parley was arranged on neutral ground in Knoxville in the hope of ending the strife which resulted yesterday in the call for a special grand jury by Harlan county Circuit Judge James M. Gilbert.

The smouldering dispute broke into the open Wednesday when one man was killed and five were wounded including a captain of the National Guard which has been patrolling the area since May.

A total of 246 persons was arrested after the fight and approximately 200 were still in jail today, unable to provide bond. Judge Gilbert said the special jury would be charged to sift every detail of the riot.

Efforts to bring a settlement of the deadlock over demands for a union shop by the U. M. W., were made by federal representatives after Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins pleaded for peace.

Gen. Ellerbee W. Carter, in command of the troops, today installed extra precautions to prevent possible trouble because both miners and guardsmen were due to be paid. He said he would close every saloon and liquor store if necessary.

WORK PROJECTS STOPPED AFTER PITCHED BATTLE

Minneapolis Mayor Declares He Fears Civil War If Trouble Continues

4,000 ENGAGE IN FIGHT

Police Unable To Cope With Persons Opposing Change In Hour Schedule

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 15 — Faced with a warning that civil war loomed over the city, all W.P.A. projects in Minneapolis were closed today following a wild night of rioting in which one man was shot to death and 28 wounded or beaten.

The shutdown order was issued at midnight by Linus Glotsbach, state W.P.A. administrator.

Two hours earlier, as the fighting still echoed in the city, Mayor George L. Leach stepped to the radio in the emergency and announced:

"In order to avoid civil war in Minneapolis, from now on we will assume no responsibility for the conduct of these federal projects."

His dire warning and Glotzbach's drastic order came as the culmination to a week of tension and violence climaxed by the disorders yesterday which involved crowds estimated as high as 4,000 persons.

The police, Mayor Leach indicated, find themselves unable to cope with such mass demonstrations.

At Sewing Project

The rioting yesterday and last night centered around the same sewing project where an outbreak occurred on Monday that resulted in the death of a policeman from overstrain.

While earlier clashes were of a serious nature, the ones yesterday assumed the proportions of a pitched battle. Ranged in one side were a force of thousands of W.P.A. strikers and sympathizers. Facing them were 55 patrolmen, 15 motorcycle officers, and five armored police cars.

With clouds of tear gas and riot guns to offset their inferior numbers, the police routed the throng after a half-hour fight.

Stretched out dead in the street when the fighting ceased was Emil August Bergstrom, 60, a relief client who had been shot in the head.

Wounded were Lynn Thompson, 14, shot in the hand; Mrs. Frances Douglas, shot in the leg; Sam Litinski, 40, who suffered a leg wound; John Solberg, 22, also shot in the leg; Joan Phyllis Masklik, 10; Donald Brooks, 32, shot in the finger; Wilfred Klaisman, 22, and Patrick P. Roesl, 28.

Gas Affects Many

An estimated 2,000 were more or less severely affected by the gas. Three policemen and five civilians were overcome. A score of others were treated for cuts and bruises.

Five persons were arrested, including Roesl, who was placed under guard in the hospital. Police said he is a member of General Drivers' union, local 544 of the A. F. of L. and is a former convict. Sidney Paulson, 22, striking W.P.A. worker and Joseph Patterson, 60, a relief client, were also taken in custody.

Two clashes occurred at the building housing the sewing proj-

Mrs. James Brigner, Circleville Route 2, was bruised at 11:15 p. m. Friday when the car in which she was riding was involved in a collision on Route 104 north of Route 22.

Mrs. Brigner was riding in an auto driven by William Henry Drake, Lockbourne. The other car involved was owned and driven by Robert S. Myers, of Good Hope, O. Myers was going south and Drake north.

FANNIE BRICE SUES

CHICAGO, July 15 — Fannie Brice, screen and radio comedienne, today had a $750,000 damage suit on file against the Twentieth-Century-Fox film corporation, several screen players and eight theatre companies. The bill charges defamation of character for the alleged portrayal of incidents in her life in the picture "Rose of Washington Square." An injunction was also sought to prohibit further showing of the film.

SCANDAL TRAPS HUEY'S DOCTOR

Clarence Lorio Named With Smith And Caldwell In Fraud Indictments

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15—In wanton disrespect of legend that the heirs of the late Huey P. Long were sacrosanct in the state of Louisiana, an East Baton Rouge parish grand jury today laid bare the scandals of Louisiana State university with the return of 28 indictments.

The avalanche of true bills, descending on this sorely besieged state capital in one thunderous, explosive report, buried even deeper the already harassed Dr. James Monroe Smith, resigned president of Louisiana State university.

The report, made to Judge Charles A. Holcombe, also ensnared Dr. Clarence T. Lorio, crown prince of the pro-Long faction in Baton Rouge; George Caldwell, 300-pound ex-building superintendent of L.S.U. and E. N. Jackson, university business manager.

Although the scope of the grand jury report was far greater than anyone had dared anticipate, reports swept the capital that this was merely the beginning of a series of revelations.

Startling as were the indictments, 23 of which were against Dr. Smith who already is in jail on a charge of embezzling $100,000, even more sensational was the revelation that months before his market ambitions collapsed the ex-university head had laid the ground-work for his defense.

This, in effect, was revealed in one indictment which specifically charged that Dr. Smith forged a resolution which set forth that his market speculation was for the benefit of a non-existent university endowment fund.

Only two days ago Dr. Smith, explaining his attempt to make himself master of the world's wheat to New Orleans District At-

EFFORTS TO END HARLAN MINING TROUBLE START

HARLAN, Ky., July 15—Under pressure from the federal government, the Harlan Coal Operators association and the United Mine Workers union today reopened negotiations to end their long dispute.

A pariey was arranged on neutral ground in Knoxville in the hope of ending the strife which resulted yesterday in the call for a special grand jury by Harlan county Circuit Judge James M. Gilbert.

The smouldering dispute broke into the open Wednesday when one man was killed and five were wounded including a captain of the National Guard which has been patrolling the area since May.

A total of 246 persons was arrested after the fight and approximately 200 were still in jail today, unable to provide bond. Judge Gilbert said the special jury would be charged to sift every detail of the riot.

Efforts to bring a settlement of the deadlock over demands for a union shop by the U. M. W., were made by federal representatives after Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins pleaded for peace.

Gen. Ellerbee W. Carter, in command of the troops, today installed extra precautions to prevent possible trouble because both miners and guardsmen were due to be paid. He said he would close every saloon and liquor store if necessary.

WORK PROJECTS STOPPED AFTER PITCHED BATTLE

Minneapolis Mayor Declares He Fears Civil War If Trouble Continues

4,000 ENGAGE IN FIGHT

Police Unable To Cope With Persons Opposing Change In Hour Schedule

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 15 — Faced with a warning that civil war loomed over the city, all W.P.A. projects in Minneapolis were closed today following a wild night of rioting in which one man was shot to death and 28 wounded or beaten.

The shutdown order was issued at midnight by Linus Glotsbach, state W.P.A. administrator.

Two hours earlier, as the fighting still echoed in the city, Mayor George L. Leach stepped to the radio in the emergency and announced:

"In order to avoid civil war in Minneapolis, from now on we will assume no responsibility for the conduct of these federal projects."

His dire warning and Glotzbach's drastic order came as the culmination to a week of tension and violence climaxed by the disorders yesterday which involved crowds estimated as high as 4,000 persons.

The police, Mayor Leach indicated, find themselves unable to cope with such mass demonstrations.

At Sewing Project

The rioting yesterday and last night centered around the same sewing project where an outbreak occurred on Monday that resulted in the death of a policeman from overstrain.

While earlier clashes were of a serious nature, the ones yesterday assumed the proportions of a pitched battle. Ranged in one side were a force of thousands of W.P.A. strikers and sympathizers. Facing them were 55 patrolmen, 15 motorcycle officers, and five armored police cars.

With clouds of tear gas and riot guns to offset their inferior numbers, the police routed the throng after a half-hour fight.

Stretched out dead in the street when the fighting ceased was Emil August Bergstrom, 60, a relief client who had been shot in the head.

Wounded were Lynn Thompson, 14, shot in the hand; Mrs. Frances Douglas, shot in the leg; Sam Litinski, 40, who suffered a leg wound; John Solberg, 22, also shot in the leg; Joan Phyllis Masklik, 10; Donald Brooks, 32, shot in the finger; Wilfred Klaisman, 22, and Patrick P. Roesl, 28.

Gas Affects Many

An estimated 2,000 were more or less severely affected by the gas. Three policemen and five civilians were overcome. A score of others were treated for cuts and bruises.

Five persons were arrested, including Roesl, who was placed under guard in the hospital. Police said he is a member of General Drivers' union, local 544 of the A. F. of L. and is a former convict. Sidney Paulson, 22, striking W.P.A. worker and Joseph Patterson, 60, a relief client, were also taken in custody.

Two clashes occurred at the building housing the sewing proj-

NELSON, PICARD, PLAYING GREAT GOLF, MEET FOR P. G. A. CHAMPIONSHIP

SUB-PAR CARDS BEING SHOT BY TWO FINALISTS

Former, Especially, Showing Rare Ability; Harrison Eliminated

By Lawton Carver

POMONOK COUNTRY CLUB, FLUSHING, N. Y., July 15 — A golf show the likes of which hasn't been seen since sawed-off pants, linoleum plaid socks and the Hagens and Sarazens all went out of style together is being put on here for the goggle-eyed witnesses to the National Professional Golf championship, and by nightfall today Byron Nelson should be established as a great legend for our next crop of posterity. All he has to do is beat Henry Picard and thus win the pro title. Moreover it may be as easy as that for Nelson, the open champion and favorite.

They advanced into the final yesterday, and by any reasonable manner of reckoning Picard should be given a chance except that there is nothing reasonable about the golf Nelson is playing. Picard struggled to a one up victory over Richard Metz, called Dick, and put on display everything necessary to approach greatness — a fine and varied assortment of shots from tee to green, deft putting and courage when Metz closed in on him toward the finish and threatened to win with a closing spurt.

Nelson Perfect

But that was more or less routine compared with what Nelson did and has been doing as he gradually has lifted his game to a peak of perfection almost unbelievable. In the semi-finals on Thursday Nelson subdued Emerick Kocsis by 10 and 9 with a record-equalling 65 on the morning round and a 34 to the turn during the afternoon. He beat Duth Harrison by 9 and 8 yesterday with a 65 on the morning round and a 32 to the afternoon turn, with that second 65 equalling the record that he had equalled the day before.

As a matter of fact, he has played his last two matches in 33 pars, 20 birdies and two bogies and to be 18 under par for the 55 holes and 28 under par for the 156 holes he has gone in the tournament. To show you further in few words and small digits what he's doing, it might be mentioned that when he went one over par yesterday on the 10th it was his first such lapse in 56 holes. Moreover, he shot his 28 holes yesterday in an even 100 strokes — pretty good going for us over 18 holes—and with that tied a stretch turned in by Sarazen in 1932 in the National Open.

Harrison Tough

He probably did other things, too, but the foregoing ought to be sufficient—it was for Kocsis and Harrison, the latter having been one of the toughest gents in the tournment until he encountered our Byron. As it was, Harrison shot a forenoon, sub-par 71, but that only left him six down. Then he shot a sub-par 35 to the afternoon turn but all that got him was elimination on the next hole.

As for Picard, he fired a brace of 69's, morning and afternoon, at Metz to finally win on the 36th, Metz having put himself out of it on the first swing with a 73, one over par, and back in it during the second 18 with a 67, which brought him from four down at the 30th to one down at the 35th, which was halved ending everything.

Today's match is the rubber clash between Nelson and Picard, each having beaten the other once in two previous encounters. And that other victory probably will stand as Picard's only one over Nelson insofar as the immediate future is concerned.

KASEY FIELDER HITS HOMER TO EDGE COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, July 15 — Opinion seemed to be today that the Kansas City Blues have what it takes, especially when the going gets tough.

It took them 12 innings to defeat the Columbus Red Birds last night but there was no doubt about the way the Blues counted their final runs. Jack Saltzgaver came to the plate in that frame with one man. He calmly knocked the ball over the right field fence for a 4 to 2 victory.

The win stretched the Blues' lead over second-place Minneapolis to three and one-half games as the Millers lost there third straight game to Indianapolis, 8 to 7.

In other games, St. Paul shut-out Louisville 3 to 0 and Milwaukee shoved Toledo farther into the cellar with a double win by scores of 5 to 1 and 2 to 1.

Durocher Rates Honors As Outstanding Manager

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, July 15—If getting much from little is a sign of good management, then Leo Durocher of the Dodgers must be acclaimed as the outstanding pilot of the major leagues today.

On paper, the Dodgers figure to be flirting downstairs with those kitchen help, the Phillies. Instead, they are up in the drawing room of the first division and making eyes at their social superiors.

They are up there despite illness, injuries and hard luck that have beset the club since the beginning of the season. They are up there despite the fact that they have only one .300 hitter—little Pete Coscarart—among their regulars.

They are up there mainly because of the superlative skill of Durocher in handling his men, directing their strategy, and infusing some of his unbeatable spirit into them.

Trained in the Yankee school, where victory is taken for granted and defeat is always considered an accident, Durocher has sold his club on the merits of the same formula.

That is why you will find the Dodgers trimming clubs who figure to beat their brains out, as the ball players put it.

Own Play Not Hurt

And if leading a ball club, with all the worry and care the job entails, has had any effect on Leo's own play it isn't discernible to the naked eye.

In fact, the man whose weak hitting earned him the derisive title of the All-America Out, is very often found pacing his team in hitting as he did yesterday when the Dodgers slaughtered the Pirates, 14 to 4, to move up ahead of the slipping Cardinals.

The Cardinal pitching has begun to show signs of wear and tear, so much so, that even the Bees had little trouble in belting out 15 hits for a 10-4 decision.

The Giants even up their series with the Reds, 4-1, on homers by Jurges and Demaree with some good pitching by Bill Lohrman and a little help from Carl Hubbell.

There were only three games in each league and over in the junior circuit the Yanks finally put the brakes to their losing streak by topping the Tigers, 6-3, when Red Ruffing outpitched Schoolboy Rowe.

The A's again took the White Sox, 7-3, on homers by Hayes and Chapman and neat pitching by Ross.

Homers also helped the Senators put the skids under the Browns, 11 to 9, the former scoring six runs in the ninth to win. Estalella and Wright took care of the long distance clouting.

Two Circuit Clouts Blast Derringer; Lohrman Aided By King Carl

NEW YORK, July 15—Cincinnati's margin over the rest of the field in the National League pennant race was back at five and one-half games today as the Reds attempted to win the "rubber" game of a series with the New York Giants.

Bill Jurges and Frank Demaree each hit homers for the Giants with one man on yesterday to account for New York's four runs. The Reds counted only once, the lone marker coming in the eighth.

Paul Derringer was charged with his fourth defeat of the season against 11 victories.

Lohrman won for the Giants being relieved by Carl Hubbell when the going became tough.

SIX-RUN RALLY WINS IN LEAGUE

Frisingers Turn In Edge Over Monarchs With Big Inning

Lewis and Frisinger Contractors were forced to put on a six run rally in their half of the sixth frame Friday evening to defeat the scrapping Monarch A. C. team in a 12-8 city league contest. The score was tied at 6-all as the sixth frame started. The Monarchs counted twice in the last session but those runs were not enough.

Ten errors by the Monarchs and four by the contractors marred the play although the players kept things interesting.

Smallwood was the winning pitcher, while R. Jones was on the hill for the losers.

President Byron Eby has called a manager's meeting for Monday evening after the regular-scheduled game.

MR. NELSON SCORES

You read about the man who smacks a home run with the bases filled, and you are amazed by the feat; then you learn that someone punted a football 70 yards in the air, or another gridder ran 80 yards through a broken field, and again you are amazed, but here's a sporting accomplishment that should be regarded as even more thrilling than either of the above-mentioned goings-on. . . It is the work of Byron Nelson, no relation to Walter, who has played 156 holes in the National P. G. A. tourney and is 28 strokes UNDER PAR . . . If you think that isn't something, try it sometime, especially when the pressure is on . . . Dutch Harrison, a Chicago pro, tried to drub Nelson, Friday, by shooting a sub-par 18 hole score, but you know what happened to Harrison . . . He was six down at the end of the 18 in which he broke ordinary figures . . . Nelson on the same 18 scored a 65, seven under par . . .

OFF THE GRID

Here 'tis, July at the halfway mark and a month away comes football practice. . . . .Tiger mentors are looking around for material and they may find an abundance of it, some green, some big, some small, and some with experience enough to form a nucleus for the 1939 Red and Black varsity. . . Up and down the street we find Bill Heffner, reportedly ready to enter a prep school and at the same time leaving a big hole at the end of the line for Tiger coaches to worry about. . . Bill could be used. . . .There's Bob Bowsher riding a bike in an effort to take off 10 pounds—that would put him down to 202. . . .And Joe Staley with his left hand bandaged up where a spike tried to block him—Moe, who is being "Harden-ed" at Fort Benjamin Harrison, and Paul Walters, an end candidate this year after working as a back, and many other, all of whom will get consideration when the grid call comes*

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea —Several new species of orchids have been discovered by the American Archbold Expedition which has been exploring the heart of Netherlands New Guinea for nearly a year. NELSON, PICARD, PLAYING GREAT GOLF, MEET FOR P. G. A. CHAMPIONSHIP

SUB-PAR CARDS BEING SHOT BY TWO FINALISTS

Former, Especially, Showing Rare Ability; Harrison Eliminated

By Lawton Carver

POMONOK COUNTRY CLUB, FLUSHING, N. Y., July 15 — A golf show the likes of which hasn't been seen since sawed-off pants, linoleum plaid socks and the Hagens and Sarazens all went out of style together is being put on here for the goggle-eyed witnesses to the National Professional Golf championship, and by nightfall today Byron Nelson should be established as a great legend for our next crop of posterity. All he has to do is beat Henry Picard and thus win the pro title. Moreover it may be as easy as that for Nelson, the open champion and favorite.

They advanced into the final yesterday, and by any reasonable manner of reckoning Picard should be given a chance except that there is nothing reasonable about the golf Nelson is playing. Picard struggled to a one up victory over Richard Metz, called Dick, and put on display everything necessary to approach greatness — a fine and varied assortment of shots from tee to green, deft putting and courage when Metz closed in on him toward the finish and threatened to win with a closing spurt.

Nelson Perfect

But that was more or less routine compared with what Nelson did and has been doing as he gradually has lifted his game to a peak of perfection almost unbelievable. In the semi-finals on Thursday Nelson subdued Emerick Kocsis by 10 and 9 with a record-equalling 65 on the morning round and a 34 to the turn during the afternoon. He beat Duth Harrison by 9 and 8 yesterday with a 65 on the morning round and a 32 to the afternoon turn, with that second 65 equalling the record that he had equalled the day before.

As a matter of fact, he has played his last two matches in 33 pars, 20 birdies and two bogies and to be 18 under par for the 55 holes and 28 under par for the 156 holes he has gone in the tournament. To show you further in few words and small digits what he's doing, it might be mentioned that when he went one over par yesterday on the 10th it was his first such lapse in 56 holes. Moreover, he shot his 28 holes yesterday in an even 100 strokes — pretty good going for us over 18 holes—and with that tied a stretch turned in by Sarazen in 1932 in the National Open.

Harrison Tough

He probably did other things, too, but the foregoing ought to be sufficient—it was for Kocsis and Harrison, the latter having been one of the toughest gents in the tournment until he encountered our Byron. As it was, Harrison shot a forenoon, sub-par 71, but that only left him six down. Then he shot a sub-par 35 to the afternoon turn but all that got him was elimination on the next hole.

As for Picard, he fired a brace of 69's, morning and afternoon, at Metz to finally win on the 36th, Metz having put himself out of it on the first swing with a 73, one over par, and back in it during the second 18 with a 67, which brought him from four down at the 30th to one down at the 35th, which was halved ending everything.

Today's match is the rubber clash between Nelson and Picard, each having beaten the other once in two previous encounters. And that other victory probably will stand as Picard's only one over Nelson insofar as the immediate future is concerned.

KASEY FIELDER HITS HOMER TO EDGE COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, July 15 — Opinion seemed to be today that the Kansas City Blues have what it takes, especially when the going gets tough.

It took them 12 innings to defeat the Columbus Red Birds last night but there was no doubt about the way the Blues counted their final runs. Jack Saltzgaver came to the plate in that frame with one man. He calmly knocked the ball over the right field fence for a 4 to 2 victory.

The win stretched the Blues' lead over second-place Minneapolis to three and one-half games as the Millers lost there third straight game to Indianapolis, 8 to 7.

In other games, St. Paul shutout Louisville 3 to 0 and Milwaukee shoved Toledo farther into the cellar with a double win by scores of 5 to 1 and 2 to 1.

Durocher Rates Honors As Outstanding Manager

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, July 15—If getting much from little is a sign of good management, then Leo Durocher of the Dodgers must be acclaimed as the outstanding pilot of the major leagues today.

On paper, the Dodgers figure to be flirting downstairs with those kitchen help, the Phillies. Instead, they are up in the drawing room of the first division and making eyes at their social superiors.

They are up there despite illness, injuries and hard luck that have beset the club since the beginning of the season. They are up there despite the fact that they have only one .300 hitter—little Pete Coscarart—among their regulars.

They are up there mainly because of the superlative skill of Durocher in handling his men, directing their strategy, and infusing some of his unbeatable spirit into them.

Trained in the Yankee school, where victory is taken for granted and defeat is always considered an accident, Durocher has sold his club on the merits of the same formula.

That is why you will find the Dodgers trimming clubs who figure to beat their brains out, as the ball players put it.

Own Play Not Hurt

And if leading a ball club, with all the worry and care the job entails, has had any effect on Leo's own play it isn't discernible to the naked eye.

In fact, the man whose weak hitting earned him the derisive title of the All-America Out, is very often found pacing his team in hitting as he did yesterday when the Dodgers slaughtered the Pirates, 14 to 4, to move up ahead of the slipping Cardinals.

The Cardinal pitching has begun to show signs of wear and tear, so much so, that even the Bees had little trouble in belting out 15 hits for a 10-4 decision.

The Giants even up their series with the Reds, 4-1, on homers by Jurges and Demaree with some good pitching by Bill Lohrman and a little help from Carl Hubbell.

There were only three games in each league and over in the junior circuit the Yanks finally put the brakes to their losing streak by topping the Tigers, 6-3, when Red Ruffing outpitched Schoolboy Rowe.

The A's again took the White Sox, 7-3, on homers by Hayes and Chapman and neat pitching by Ross.

Homers also helped the Senators put the skids under the Browns, 11 to 9, the former scoring six runs in the ninth to win. Estalella and Wright took care of the long distance clouting.

PARKER, DOEG MEET

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 15—Frank Parker and John Doeg meet today in the second semi-final of the Spring Lake invitation tournament, the winner to meet Gardnar Mulloy in the final Sunday. Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., routed Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, the nation's second highest ranking amateur, 6-2; 6-1, 6-2 in the first semi-final yesterday.

REDLEG MARGIN CUT BY DEFEAT

Two Circuit Clouts Blast Derringer; Lohrman Aided By King Carl

NEW YORK, July 15—Cincinnati's margin over the rest of the field in the National League pennant race was back at five and one-half games today as the Reds attempted to win the "rubber" game of a series with the New York Giants.

Bill Jurges and Frank Demaree each hit homers for the Giants with one man on yesterday to account for New York's four runs. The Reds counted only once, the lone marker coming in the eighth.

Paul Derringer was charged with his fourth defeat of the season against 11 victories.

Lohrman won for the Giants being relieved by Carl Hubbell when the going became tough.

SIX-RUN RALLY WINS IN LEAGUE

Frisingers Turn In Edge Over Monarchs With Big Inning

Lewis and Frisinger Contractors were forced to put on a six run rally in their half of the sixth frame Friday evening to defeat the scrapping Monarch A. C. team in a 12-8 city league contest. The score was tied at 6-all as the sixth frame started. The Monarchs counted twice in the last session but those runs were not enough.

Ten errors by the Monarchs and four by the contractors marred the play although the players kept things interesting.

Smallwood was the winning pitcher, while R. Jones was on the hill for the losers.

President Byron Eby has called a manager's meeting for Monday evening after the regular-scheduled game.

Rehoboam: A Foolish Choice — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Kings 12:1-20.

After Solomon's death, his son, Rehoboam, went to Shechem to be crowned, and Jeroboam, who had fled to Egypt, came back and led the people to petition Rehoboam to relieve the heavy burdens imposed on them by Solomon.

Rehoboam consulted the older men who had been his father's counsellors, and they told him he should listen to the people and be their servant, and then they would serve him and be loyal to him forever.

Rehoboam was not satisfied, however, and called together the young men who had grown up with him, and they advised him to tell the people that as his father Solomon was hard on them, he would be still harder.

Rehoboam chose the young men's advice, and told his people that whereas his father, Solomon, had laid upon them a heavy yoke, he would add to their burdens, so they rebelled. (GOLDEN TEXT—Proverbs 29:23.)

"A man's pride shall bring him low."—Proverbs 29:23.

Rehoboam: A Foolish Choice — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Kings 12:1-20.

After Solomon's death, his son, Rehoboam, went to Shechem to be crowned, and Jeroboam, who had fled to Egypt, came back and led the people to petition Rehoboam to relieve the heavy burdens imposed on them by Solomon.

Rehoboam consulted the older men who had been his father's counsellors, and they told him he should listen to the people and be their servant, and then they would serve him and be loyal to him forever.

Rehoboam was not satisfied, however, and called together the young men who had grown up with him, and they advised him to tell the people that as his father Solomon was hard on them, he would be still harder.

Rehoboam chose the young men's advice, and told his people that whereas his father, Solomon, had laid upon them a heavy yoke, he would add to their burdens, so they rebelled.

SHOWY METHODS

THOUSANDS of persons in our own Midwest and in southern Ontario were dazzled the other evening by a flashing meteor which scientists agreed was a fairly large one. It appeared soon after sunset and provided a grand display of heavenly fireworks.

Ten days earlier, Oregon saw a daylight meteor which was described as an "explosion in the sky." It was heard in a wide area and left a visible "smoky trail."

These events, in earlier ages, would have terrorized the world. Or seers would have explained them as omens. Today their nature is known, as well as the fact that they rarely do any damage. People regard them with great interest and demand information about them from local scientists and newspaper offices.

The last sizeable daylight meteor in the Northwest occurred in September 1910. "Some 20,000,000 meteors fall every day," says an observatory assistant at Case School of Applied Science. "But most of them are small and are burned up by friction without undue commotion."

Laymen are inclined to believe that there are more meteorological thrills lately than formerly. Very handsome displays of the Aurora Borealis have become fairly common along the Great Lakes, and now the meteors seem to be getting bigger and more numerous. Not to mention the sunspots and the violent didoes they are accused of causing in the way of earthquakes, floods, and so on.

HUMAN VALUES

IT was a pretty good speech that Ambassador Bill Bullitt delivered in France on the Fourth. Human beings, he suggested, "are ends in themselves, and not instruments to be employed by the will of a powerful individual."

It is the same idea that our American poet-seer, Walt Whitman, expressed when he maintained that the purpose of life is "the making of the best persons." In other words, government exists for the sake of the individual, and not the individual for the sake of the government.

"Nations which believe, as do the Americans and French and British," continued Mr. Bullitt, "that human beings are an end in themselves and not instruments to be employed by a powerful individual, naturally seek to achieve their aims without war."

It is well for Americans, as believers in and practitioners of democracy, to keep this faith clear and strong. In the present state of the world, this is "what it's all about."

If Tony Galento and Joe Louis fight again, we'd like to see 'em do it verbally, in words of more than one syllable.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

SILENT MAYOR MAESTRI IS KINGFISH

WASHINGTON—If there has been any one heir to the Kingfish throne of the late Huey Long, it is Robert Sidney Maestri, dark, heavy-jowled, derrick-shouldered Mayor of New Orleans.

Dick Leche, who so hurriedly resigned the governorship when W.P.A. scandals got hot, was an affable, easy-going puppet for the Huey Long successors. Earl Long, the new Governor, never was on the inside until recently. Seymour Weiss, Huey's pal and mentor, has been treading softly since his income tax difficulties. Others tried to talk big, but lacked the gall and guts of Mayor Maestri.

If Huey was the Kingfish, Maestri today is Kingpin. He plays a background role, makes no speeches which would betray his "dis, dat and de odder"; but today he is probably more powerful than Huey Long ever was.

For he controls two machines; his own machine in New Orleans where Huey never was strong; and the old state machine inherited from Long.

A believer in ruthless ruling tactics, Maestri first took to Huey when the Kingfish gave him the dressing-down of his life, called him all the vile names in the dictionary. These are the tactics Maestri understands. He listened, liked it, and became Huey's faithful follower.

MAESTRI AND ROOSEVELT

Short, chunky, but weighing about 200 pounds, Maestri likes to act the strong, silent, Calvin Coolidge role. He hates palaver. Characteristic of him was an incident which occurred during the visit of President Roosevelt en route to a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico two years ago.

Roosevelt to Antoine's, famous New Orleans restaurant, where the finest food was set before him, first dish being oysters Rockefeller. Mayor Maestri ate silently, rapidly, keeping his eyes on the oysters. Roosevelt ate with gusto and relish. Finally, Maestri leaned over and spoke his first word of the meal: "Howdoya like 'em?"

Roosevelt, replying at length, emphasized his appreciation of this informal and delightful gathering.

Maestri said nothing. Not until the end of the lunch did the Mayor speak again. "Was it a pretty good meal?" he rasped out of the side of his mouth.

Effusively Roosevelt replied that he wished he could have food like that in the White House, and so on.

Afterward Eddie Hebert, editor of The New Orleans States, remarked to Maestri: "You certainly were doing a lot of talking with the President. What did he say to you?"

"Aw," replied the Mayor, "He's full of bull."

MAESTRI'S FRIENDS

As a young man, Maestri worked in his father's furniture store and hung around Tom Anderson's saloons, one on Rampart

DIET AND HEATH

Getting In Shape For Coming Winter

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YOU CAN'T take advantage of your summer vacation and really accomplish the result it is supposed to attain—get yourself fit for the winter—if your muscles or the other parts of the framework of your body are sore and painful.

Of these, backache is among the most annoying. Very few of us go through life without a backache. Some overdo it. That slur upon femininity, a definition of woman as "A two-legged, constipated mammal with a backache," need not have restricted itself so insultingly. The male of the species is almost as subject to the complaints listed as the female.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The commonest backache is called by the patient "lumbago," or a "kink," or a "sprain." It is very definitely associated with strain. I have before me the record of a woman who had an attack of low back pain 12 years ago, which she attributed to lifting. Every time after that when she has performed an unusual exertion, such as lifting, playing golf or tennis, she has had a recurrence.

Due to Infection

These cases are classified and reclassified by specialists, but except for very rare diseases, such as gout or arthritis of the spine, they are almost invariably due to infection.

What the infection does and exactly where it lights is not easy to explain, even with all the exact instruments of modern science.

Removal of the infective foci and the use of heat and manipulation—interspersed with periods of absolute rest—are the best treatments we have to offer these disabled ones.

O. Henry once wrote a very funny story about his doctor experiences. He went to a good many doctors and what they all said to him he finally summed up in the words he told everyone he met, "I must have absolute rest and exercise." Of course, it sounds goofy, but if he had inserted the word alternating it makes sense. "I must have alternating periods of absolute rest and exercise." Thus amended it is a good prescription for backache.

Every doctor is besieged by questions as to how some magic, mystic healer or manipulator accomplishes his results. Dr. Armitage Whitman has a good story to explain that.

Shows How

"An orthopedic surgeon who had made a journey to Canada for the purpose of investigating the methods of a doctor who was performing miraculous cures of all sorts of complaints by simple, momentary manipulations of the patients' feet, unaccompanied by any pretense at a general physical examination, said he would show me what the doctor did.

"'But,' I objected, 'there's nothing the matter with my feet.'

"'That's what you think,' he replied coarsely. 'Take off your shoe.'

"I did. He grasped my foot in both hands—he had been an intercollegiate wrestling champion—and moved it violently in all directions. To use technical terms, he put it through the complete range of passive motion. It hurt. But the strange part of it was that, although I had not been conscious of any previous dissatisfaction with my foot, after the manipulation it did feel better, for at least five minutes. I suppose the phenomenon is comparable to the story of the insane man who was seen by a visitor to the asylum banging his head against the wall. When asked why he was doing it, he replied that it felt so good when he stopped." (From Head to Foot, by Armitage Whitman Published by Farrar and Rinehart, New York.)

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a glorious morning after a cool night that made sleeping a pleasure instead of practically an impossible task. Leisurely down to coffee and the morning prints, learning more of the W.P.A. strike and the Giants' defeat of our Reds. Then to the post, there to meet Ed Sensenbrenner as he rode up on a bike I had not seen before. And no wonder, for it was the bike's first venture out in a quarter of a century.

Almost forty years ago Ed won that bicycle in a 14 mile race. Charlie Titus paced him and Ed was barging right along when he got a puncture. Charlie went ahead and finished first, giving the bike to Ed. A Quaker it is with a 24 inch frame. "None better," says the jeweler, who has returned to his early sport for exercise.

Ed recalled that many long years ago when bicycle riding was at the peak of its popularity everyone who rode 100 miles or more in a day received a solid gold bar that was worn as a decoration. Billy Shell was around here then and he sported many of them as did Ed and Charlie Titus. Billy was here from California a few days ago. Retired now.

There go Dick Pettit and Barton Deming, editors of the "Neighborhood Burp," the ville's newest newspaper for which I was glad to pay two cents, especially when I learned that the edition was an "extra" dealing with my recent trip into Canada. There's a cartoon of the scrivener dreaming of the big one that got away. The story said I reported a heavy catch, but brought no fish home as proof. Also that I dined often and sumptuously on canned sardines and that my chief lure was dynamite. Also on the same page was a note to the effect that "Several business men are thinking of buying a lie detector for use on Circleville fishermen."

In the afternoon did meet Russ Miller, Clarence Wolf, Jim Stout, Harl Betz and Bryan Custer, just back from the Northland and reporting an entire lack of fishing luck after leaving Lake Nippising for Blind River and Goulais bay. Exchanged greetings with Bill Crist, the banker, and visited the Coffee Club with Mayor Bill.

Wings of Youth

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By HELEN WELSHIMER

"Thank you," she said simply. "Thank you so awfully much!"

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

IT WAS LATE Saturday evening when the door bell rang. Dozens of red roses, the minister's favorite flower, were swathed in wet tissue paper in a gray florist's box.

"Congratulation or condolence?" Corrinne mused. "Is there a note?"

So the family went to church and Corrinne, Sarah Anne, and Bob Ransom sat together in the last pew. Down near the front Judith Drake sat between her parents, and far to the right tall Jack Courtney towered above his mother.

The opening song was sung.

Praise God from Whom all blessings flow,
Praise Him all creatures here below—

Sarah Anne, in her black dress, worn with its own black girdle this morning, felt a lump rising in her throat. She had joined this chorus so many times when there had been blessings to count. Now there were so few. So few . . . yet she had health, youth, vision, courage, faith. Maybe life was good. Only she must not let her banner down. She must not love again. She must believe always that there was a new horizon and go to meet it.

You carried on. Storm, stress, wind, rain, famine did not stop you. Perhaps they delayed you. Maybe they sidetracked you for a little while, but in the end you went on, to meet that skyline beyond the pioneer trek.

Her father was doing it this morning. He did not know if these people were his flock, if they had decided he must stay with them or must go on. But his voice did not falter, and his eyes did not cloud. Gallantry! That described him. It was a shining word, and she must wear it, too.

She was glad that she had reached this serenity of understanding alone, when the president of the church official board arose. His words had been carefully prepared. He was a large, ponderous man and Sarah Anne visualized him struggling over the correct form of presenting his message.

The introduction was long. It was as ornate as a lace paper valentine. It praised the minister and his wife, their work, their devotion to the church and the town.

But why didn't he hurry? Why didn't he say simply: "Your resignation is accepted with regret," or, "We do not accept your resignation." The girl's hands were clenched tightly and Bob Ransom leaned over and touched them.

"Relax, Sarah Anne. Bet you a quarter you stay."

The words broke her tautness. She leaned back. She must remember, remember always, that it wasn't what life did to you that mattered. It was how you accepted it, met it, braved it. To go on without ceasing.

But the chairman had reached the pith of his message.

"—and so why our good friend and pastor has any idea that we would consider his resignation is something quite beyond me. Certainly we will do no such thing. He stays—he stays for life if I have my way."

The church was still for a moment. So still that when the clock in the tower chimed its quarter of the hour the vibration left the auditorium trembling. Then the applause came, triumphant and happy.

And in the midst of it Sarah Anne slipped away. She walked to the corner of the churchyard where there were a few tombstones, marking the graves of some early settlers. She sat down on the biggest one, as she had done when she was a little girl. She did not close her eyes. She looked into the bright blue summer sky, hunting for that golden throne where a kindly Father sat. "Thank You," she said simply. "Thank You so awfully much!"

All that new week Sarah Anne continued to practice her jumps. She became a heroine to the grade school pupils who flocked to the airport to watch her.

She and Judith made plans. There were to be some southern fairs that autmun, and they could enter. Sarah Anne would jump and Judith would pilot. They received a dozen offers and accepted them.

"A dollar a thrill," Judith said. "But an exciting way to make ou. living. That is, providing you always wear two parachutes. I'll never take you up if you don't. And no fancy stuff."

Sarah Anne realized that it was because she had been locked within herself for so long that now she could ruthlessly sweep away the boundaries and make this venture. It wasn't her body that was hurling itself into space, seeking freedom alone. It was her mind, too, but no one else understood that.

The late summer was growing hot and heavy and the grass was withering in the lawns. It hadn't rained for a few weeks, and the flowers drooped, and the dust sifted through the screens and covered the chintzes and the shining old maple and mahogany.

Sarah Anne and Judy talked about the cool tang of the coming autumn, forgetting that they still would be warm in the south. That future was something viewed behind a curtain . . . not real, yet not imagined.

And through her days, Sarah Anne saw a tall young man with a lean, tanned face, walking slowly, or walking swiftly. He had no limp in her dreams. He was quite recovered, and he had flown away.

She went one night to a motion picture in a town where she and Judy were arranging for a parachute jump.

"One hundred dollars, that's fifty apiece," she had told Judy, who insisted that the greater part should be Sarah Anne's because she made the jumps.

"I'm the chauffeur and chauffeurs' rates are enough for me," the amber-eyed girl insisted.

The movie was a mediocre story of a boy who met a girl, left the girl, and came back to her.

News pictures followed it. Suddenly Sarah Anne was sitting forward in her seat. A candid camera had followed some aviators at an eastern meet, and in their midst, taller and more handsome than the others, stood Robert Kennedy.

His eyes were looking away, across distances. Not at her, not at anyone, at a dream or a mirage.

She leaned back, shaken and white. Must she always be so strangely stirred at that lithe, strong body, those expressive, probing eyes? Would he never be just another man to her?

He had gone away. He had not trusted her. And she would not be a mendicant seeking his favor, even in the dark quiet of the motion picture house.

Then Bernice entered the picture, in a white helmet and jodhpurs, and the announcer said that the two social registerites intended to make the stratosphere test the next spring.

Spring—it was a long time away. First there must be winter, with its cold and ice and hearth fires and lamplights. But one day the rivers would be free and blue, the snow would blow away, fireflies would carry lanterns in the night, and the sky would be open.

Bob and Bernice.

And suddenly, in the bare little theater, Sarah Anne was afraid for them. The stratosphere was so high, so far. She had vowed to make such a jump, and she would make it, if need be. She was not afraid for herself. And that was odd. But she knew all fear for Bob. Suppose his plane couldn't stand the strain. Suppose his heart gave way, or his oxygen equipment didn't work!

She reminded herself that his heart would be tested in the cold chamber at the Wright field in Dayton, Ohio, and his lungs would be forced to take the test there, too. Likewise every inch of equipment would be checked over and over again. The oxygen would meet the challenge of the vacuum chamber, which was 40 degrees lower than zero.

But none of these things helped. The worry stayed with her. When Judy spoke she answered, but the words were meaningless.

In that moment, in the movie house, with boys eating peanuts just behind her, she knew that she loved Robert Kennedy. Loved him beyond all reason, all time and all place. Forever! Why, she did not know.

And as truly she realized that he had gone from her life. But one went on. Somewhere, sometime there must be a new horizon. There must!

SHOWY METHODS

THOUSANDS of persons in our own Midwest and in southern Ontario were dazzled the other evening by a flashing meteor which scientists agreed was a fairly large one. It appeared soon after sunset and provided a grand display of heavenly fireworks.

Ten days earlier, Oregon saw a daylight meteor which was described as an "explosion in the sky." It was heard in a wide area and left a visible "smoky trail."

These events, in earlier ages, would have terrorized the world. Or seers would have explained them as omens. Today their nature is known, as well as the fact that they rarely do any damage. People regard them with great interest and demand information about them from local scientists and newspaper offices.

The last sizeable daylight meteor in the Northwest occurred in September 1910. Some 20,000,000 meteors fall every day," says an observatory assistant at Case School of Applied Science. "But most of them are small and are burned up by friction without undue commotion."

Laymen are inclined to believe that there are more meteorological thrills lately than formerly. Very handsome displays of the Aurora Borealis have become fairly common along the Great Lakes, and now the meteors seem to be getting bigger and more numerous. Not to mention the sunspots and the violent didoes they are accused of causing in the way of earthquakes, floods, and so on.

HUMAN VALUES

It was a pretty good speech that Ambassador Bill Bullitt delivered in France on the Fourth. Human beings, he suggested, "are ends in themselves, and not instruments to be employed by the will of a powerful individual."

It is the same idea that our American poet-seer, Walt Whitman, expressed when he maintained that the purpose of life is the making of the best persons." In her words, government exists for the sake of the individual, and not the individual for the sake of the government.

"Nations which believe, as do the Americans and French and British," continued Mr. Bullitt, "that human beings are the end in themselves and not instruments to be employed by a powerful individual, naturally seek to achieve their aims without war."

It is well for Americans, as believers in and practitioners of democracy, to keep its faith clear and strong. In the present state of the world, this is "what it's all about."

If Tony Galento and Joe Louis fight again, we'd like to see 'em do it verbally, in words of more than one syllable.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

SILENT MAYOR MAESTRI IS KINGFISH

WASHINGTON—If there has been any one heir to the Kingfish throne of the late Huey Long, it is Robert Sidney Maestri, dark, heavy-jowled, derrick-shouldered Mayor of New Orleans.

Dick Leche, who so hurriedly resigned the governorship when W.P.A. scandals got hot, was an affable, easy-going puppet for the Huey Long successors. Earl Long, the new Governor, never was on the inside until recently. Seymour Weiss, Huey's pal and mentor, has been treading softly since his income tax difficulties. Others tried to talk big, but lacked the gall and guts of Mayor Maestri.

If Huey was the Kingfish, Maestri today is Kingpin. He plays a background role, makes no speeches which would betray his "dis, dat and de odder"; but today he is probably more powerful than Huey Long ever was.

For he controls two machines; his own machine in New Orleans where Huey never was strong; and the old state machine inherited from Long.

A believer in ruthless ruling tactics, Maestri first took to Huey when the Kingfish gave him the dressing-down of his life, called him all the vile names in the dictionary. These are the tactics Maestri understands. He listened, liked it, and became Huey's faithful follower.

MAESTRI AND ROOSEVELT

Short, chunky, but weighing about 200 pounds, Maestri likes to act the strong, silent, Calvin Coolidge role. He hates palaver. Characteristic of him was an incident which occurred during the visit of President Roosevelt en route to a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico two years ago.

Roosevelt to Antoine's, famous New Orleans restaurant, where the finest food was set before him, first dish being oysters Rockefeller. Mayor Maestri ate silently, rapidly, keeping his eyes on the oysters. Roosevelt ate with gusto and relish. Finally, Maestri leaned over and spoke his first word of the meal: "Howdoya like 'em?"

Roosevelt, replying at length, emphasized his appreciation of this informal and delightful gathering.

Maestri said nothing. Not until the end of the lunch did the Mayor speak again. "Was it a pretty good meal?" he rasped out of the side of his mouth.

Effusively Roosevelt replied that he wished he could have food like that in the White House, and so on.

Afterward Eddie Hebert, editor of The New Orleans States, remarked to Maestri: "You certainly were doing a lot of talking with the President. What did he say to you?"

"Aw," replied the Mayor, "He's full of bull."

MAESTRI'S FRIENDS

As a young man, Maestri worked in his father's furniture store and hung around Tom Anderson's saloons, one on Rampart

Getting In Shape For Coming Winter

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YOU CAN'T take advantage of your summer vacation and really accomplish the result it is supposed to attain—get yourself fit for the winter—if your muscles or the other parts of the framework of your body are sore and painful.

Of these, backache is among the most annoying. Very few of us go through life without a backache. Some overdo it. That slur upon femininity, a definition of woman as "A two-legged, constipated mammal with a backache," need not have restricted itself so insultingly. The male of the species is almost as subject to the complaints listed as the female.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The commonest backache is called by the patient "lumbago," or a "kink," or a "sprain." It is very definitely associated with strain. I have before me the record of a woman who had an attack of low back pain 12 years ago, which she attributed to lifting. Every time after that when she has performed an unusual exertion, such as lifting, playing golf or tennis, she has had a recurrence.

Due to Infection

These cases are classified and reclassified by specialists, but except for very rare diseases, such as gout or arthritis of the spine, they are almost invariably due to infection.

What the infection does and exactly where it lights is not easy to explain, even with all the exact instruments of modern science.

Removal of the infective foci and the use of heat and manipulation—interspersed with periods of absolute rest—are the best treatments we have to offer these disabled ones.

O. Henry once wrote a very funny story about his doctor experiences. He went to a good many doctors and what they all said to him he finally summed up in the words he told everyone he met, "I must have absolute rest and exercise." Of course, it sounds goofy, but if he had inserted the word alternating it makes sense. "I must have alternating periods of absolute rest and exercise." Thus amended it is a good prescription for backache.

Every doctor is besieged by questions as to how some magic, mystic healer or manipulator accomplishes his results. Dr. Armitage Whitman has a good story to explain that.

Shows How

"An orthopedic surgeon who had made a journey to Canada for the purpose of investigating the methods of a doctor who was performing miraculous cures of all sorts of complaints by simple, momentary manipulations of the patients' feet, unaccompanied by any pretense at a general physical examination, said he would show me what the doctor did.

"'But,' I objected, 'there's nothing the matter with my feet.'

"'That's what you think,' he replied coarsely. 'Take off your shoe.'

"I did. He grasped my foot in both hands—he had been an intercollegiate wrestling champion—and moved it violently in all directions. To use technical terms, he put it through the complete range of passive motion. It hurt. But the strange part of it was that, although I had not been conscious of any previous dissatisfaction with my foot, after the manipulation it did feel better, for at least five minutes. I suppose the phenomenon is comparable to the story of the insane man who was seen by a visitor to the asylum banging his head against the wall. When asked why he was doing it, he replied that it felt so good when he stopped." (From Head to Foot, by Armitage Whitman Published by Farrar and Rinehart, New York.)

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

Wings of Youth

By HELEN WELSHIMER

"Thank you," she said simply. "Thank you so awfully much!"

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

IT WAS LATE Saturday evening when the door bell rang. Dozens of red roses, the minister's favorite flower, were swathed in wet tissue paper in a gray florist's box.

"Congratulation or condolence?" Corrinne mused. "Is there a note?"

So the family went to church and Corrinne, Sarah Anne, and Bob Ransom sat together in the last pew. Down near the front Judith Drake sat between her parents, and far to the right tall Jack Courtney towered above his mother.

The opening song was sung.

Praise God from Whom all blessings flow,
Praise Him all creatures here below—

Sarah Anne, in her black dress, worn with its own black girdle this morning, felt a lump rising in her throat. She had joined this chorus so many times when there had been blessings to count. Now there were so few. So few . . . yet she had health, youth, vision, courage, faith. Maybe life was good. Only she must not let her banner down. She must not love again. She must believe always that there was a new horizon and go to meet it.

You carried on. Storm, stress, wind, rain, famine did not stop you. Perhaps they delayed you. Maybe they sidetracked you for a little while, but in the end you went on, to meet that skyline beyond the pioneer trek.

Her father was doing it this morning. He did not know if these people were his flock, if they had decided he must stay with them or must go on. But his voice did not falter, and his eyes did not cloud. Gallantry! That described him. It was a shining word, and she must wear it, too.

She was glad that she had reached this serenity of understanding alone, when the president of the church official board arose. His words had been carefully prepared. He was a large, ponderous man and Sarah Anne visualized him struggling over the correct form of presenting his message.

The introduction was long. It was as ornate as a lace paper valentine. It praised the minister and his wife, their work, their devotion to the church and the town.

But why didn't he hurry? Why didn't he say simply: "Your resignation is accepted with regret," or, "We do not accept your resignation." The girl's hands were clenched tightly and Bob Ransom leaned over and touched them.

"Relax, Sarah Anne. Bet you a quarter you stay."

The words broke her tautness. She leaned back. She must remember, remember always, that it wasn't what life did to you that mattered. It was how you accepted it, met it, braved it. To go on without ceasing.

But the chairman had reached the pith of his message.

"—and so why our good friend and pastor has any idea that we would consider his resignation is something quite beyond me. Certainly we will do no such thing. He stays—he stays for life if I have my way."

The church was still for a moment. So still that when the clock in the tower chimed its quarter of the hour the vibration left the auditorium trembling. Then the applause came, triumphant and happy.

And in the midst of it Sarah Anne slipped away. She walked to the corner of the churchyard where there were a few tombstones, marking the graves of some early settlers. She sat down on the biggest one, as she had done when she was a little girl. She did not close her eyes. She looked into the bright blue summer sky, hunting for that golden throne where a kindly Father sat. "Thank You," she said simply. "Thank You so awfully much!"

All that new week Sarah Anne continued to practice her jumps. She became a heroine to the grade school pupils who flocked to the airport to watch her.

She and Judith made plans. There were to be some southern fairs that autmun, and they could enter. Sarah Anne would jump and Judith would pilot. They received a dozen offers and accepted them.

"A dollar a thrill," Judith said. "But an exciting way to make ou living. That is, providing you always wear two parachutes. I'll never take you up if you don't. And no fancy stuff."

Sarah Anne realized that it was because she had been locked within herself for so long that now she could ruthlessly sweep away the boundaries and make this venture. It wasn't her body that was hurling itself into space, seeking freedom alone. It was her mind, too, but no one else understood that.

The late summer was growing hot and heavy and the grass was withering in the lawns. It hadn't rained for a few weeks, and the flowers drooped, and the dust sifted through the screens and covered the chintzes and the shining old maple and mahogany.

Sarah Anne and Judy talked about the cool tang of the coming autumn, forgetting that they still would be warm in the south. That future was something viewed behind a curtain . . . not real, yet not imagined.

And through her days, Sarah Anne saw a tall young man with a lean, tanned face, walking slowly, or walking swiftly. He had no limp in her dreams. He was quite recovered, and he had flown away.

She went one night to a motion picture in a town where she and Judy were arranging for a parachute jump.

"One hundred dollars, that's fifty apiece," she had told Judy, who insisted that the greater part should be Sarah Anne's because she made the jumps.

"I'm the chauffeur and chauffeurs' rates are enough for me," the amber-eyed girl insisted.

The movie was a mediocre story of a boy who met a girl, left the girl, and came back to her.

Fall's In The Air; Hat Shows It

IT TAKES Marlene Dietrich to buy 16 advance Fall hats this time of year. Most of us are silenced with one, provided it's something like this stitched grey velveteen, which will go with September as well as July ensembles. Imagine it with grey jersey for luncheon and a lightweight grey wool suit for vacation travel, and you have the idea. That visor effect is one of the most popular in Fall bonnets and is being carried out in tweed, felt, velvet and fabrics as well as fur. The elongated pheasant feather should catch anyone's eye.

A series of contests planned for the Boy Scouts with judging on the point system and prizes to be awarded to the winning troops. The prizes will be $7 for first, $5 for second, and $3 for third. Free swimming will be enjoyed from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock. There will be free roller skating from 7 to 8 o'clock. All Scouts, their parents and prospective Scouts are to register. Tickets will be issued for swimming and roller skating.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Americans are noted for their use of cut flowers as decoration. In England and other countries potted plants are usually used in preference. Here, however, ways of prolonging the life of cut flowers is an interesting subject, especially during the Flower Show season.

As shown in the Garden-Graph, a few drops of gelatine dropped into the heart of a poppy flower will preserve its beauty much longer than usual.

Flowers should be cut early in the morning or late in the afternoon since the stems contain a maximum amount of moisture at that time. It is a good practice to plunge the flowers deeply into a pail of water as soon as they are cut, leave them there until they have become thoroughly soaked and then arrange them.

Longer Life for Cut Flowers

Providing Meat A Place On Menu For Summer

A DIET of salads and similar light foods is all very well through the Summer. But when the heat abates a bit, there comes a desire for a meat dish which is nourishing but not too heavy.

Swedish Meat Balls, tasty and well-flavored, are easily prepared once the impressive array of ingredients has been brought together. These include two pounds ground round steak, one pound ground pork steak, two beaten eggs, one cup mashed potatoes, one cup dry bread crumbs, teaspoon brown sugar, one cup milk, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon each pepper, ginger, nutmeg, cloves and allspice. Mix the ingredients to make a soft mixture that can barely be handled. Form into soft balls and roll in flour. Fry on all sides in a small amount of hot fat until brown. Pour a pint of cream over the meat balls. Cover and let simmer slowly until the meat is tender—about 30 minutes. The meat balls may also be covered and placed in the oven about 40 minutes.

Fanchonettes of lamb is an inexpensive dish. Lamb shanks are economical but when well-prepared can be delicious. Three lamb shanks will serve six. Other items include three cloves, teaspoon celery seed, one-half bay leaf, teaspoon ground thyme, one-fourth teaspoon ground sage, three cups well-seasoned mashed potatoes, one cup small kidney beans, one cup coarsely-shopped, cooked cabbage and one cup cooked carrots. Boil the shanks with the seasonings until tender. Remove meat from bones and cut in cubes. Line individual molds with seasoned mashed potatoes. Fill with meat and vegetables, and moisten with the lamb stock. Top with mashed potatoes. Brush over with milk or beaten egg; brown in 450 degree F. oven.

Veal Dish

For a delicate dish of veal, buy two pounds breast of veal. Other items include three tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, three cups water, one onion, four cloves, one bay leaf, tablespoon parsley (chopped), two slices of lemon, two pinches of nutmeg, salt and pepper. Cut meat into small pieces. Put in a stew pan with the water, flour and butter mixed as for thickening. Add the onion stock with the cloves, the chopped parsley, the bay leaf, lemon slices, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Cook slowly for one and one-half to two hours. Enough water and flour should be added to provide plenty of cream sauce. Strain sauce.

Beef Chili Con Carne is a dish that seems to appeal to the menfolk in any weather. It is made with two tablespoons butter, one large onion (shredded), one small can pimento, two pounds cooked beef, two cups beef stock, tablespoon chili powder, teaspoon salt and a pinch of black pepper. Melt butter, add shredded onion and chopped pimento. Fry until brown. Add meat cut into small pieces and cook for 10 minutes. Then add stock and seasonings. Simmer for an hour in a frying pan with a tight cover. Garnish with cooked rice.

Girl Scouts Will Have Part In Monday Event

Circleville's Girl Scout troop, No. 4, will present demonstrations and have group singing and games, Monday, at the first annual Boy and Girl Scout picnic but will not compete for prizes.

Miss Ruth Stout, E. Mound street, lieutenant of the troop, announced Saturday that a donation of $10 made for the Girl Scouts for the picnic would be used by the troop for supplies. Circleville has only one troop of Girl Scouts. This troop includes 19 members.

The first annual picnic of Boy and Girl Scouts and Cubs and their families will be held Monday afternoon and evening at Gold Cliff. The Boy and Girl Scouts will meet at the courthouse at 1 p. m. for a parade in the downtown district, then go to Gold Cliff. Events at the park start at 2 o'clock.

A series of contests planned for the Boy Scouts with judging on the point system and prizes to be awarded to the winning troops. The prizes will be $7 for first, $5 for second, and $3 for third. Free swimming will be enjoyed from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock. There will be free roller skating from 7 to 8 o'clock. All Scouts, their parents and prospective Scouts are to register. Tickets will be issued for swimming and roller skating.

Eight Boy Scout troops of the county and two Cub Packs will participate in events at the picnic. Dan McClain is general chairman of the picnic.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Americans are noted for their use of cut flowers as decoration. In England and other countries potted plants are usually used in preference. Here, however, ways of prolonging the life of cut flowers is an interesting subject, especially during the Flower Show season.

As shown in the Garden-Graph, a few drops of gelatine dropped into the heart of a poppy flower will preserve its beauty much longer than usual.

Flowers should be cut early in the morning or late in the afternoon since the stems contain a maximum amount of moisture at that time. It is a good practice to plunge the flowers deeply into a pail of water as soon as they are cut, leave them there until they have become thoroughly soaked and then arrange them.

Longer Life for Cut Flowers

Providing Meat A Place On Menu For Summer

A DIET of salads and similar light foods is all very well through the Summer. But when the heat abates a bit, there comes a desire for a meat dish which is nourishing but not too heavy.

Swedish Meat Balls, tasty and well-flavored, are easily prepared once the impressive array of ingredients has been brought together. These include two pounds ground round steak, one pound ground pork steak, two beaten eggs, one cup mashed potatoes, one cup dry bread crumbs, teaspoon brown sugar, one cup milk, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon each pepper, ginger, nutmeg, cloves and allspice. Mix the ingredients to make a soft mixture that can barely be handled. Form into soft balls and roll in flour. Fry on all sides in a small amount of hot fat until brown. Pour a pint of cream over the meat balls. Cover and let simmer slowly until the meat is tender—about 30 minutes. The meat balls may also be covered and placed in the oven about 40 minutes.

Fanchonettes of lamb is an inexpensive dish. Lamb shanks are economical but when well-prepared can be delicious. Three lamb shanks will serve six. Other items include three cloves, teaspoon celery seed, one-half bay leaf, teaspoon ground thyme, one-fourth teaspoon ground sage, three cups well-seasoned mashed potatoes, one cup small kidney beans, one cup coarsely-shopped, cooked cabbage and one cup cooked carrots. Boil the shanks with the seasonings until tender. Remove meat from bones and cut in cubes. Line individual molds with seasoned mashed potatoes. Fill with meat and vegetables, and moisten with the lamb stock. Top with mashed potatoes. Brush over with milk or beaten egg; brown in 450 degree F. oven.

Veal Dish

For a delicate dish of veal, buy two pounds breast of veal. Other items include three tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, three cups water, one onion, four cloves, one bay leaf, tablespoon parsley (chopped), two slices of lemon, two pinches of nutmeg, salt and pepper. Cut meat into small pieces. Put in a stew pan with the water, flour and butter mixed as for thickening. Add the onion stock with the cloves, the chopped parsley, the bay leaf, lemon slices, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Cook slowly for one and one-half to two hours. Enough water and flour should be added to provide plenty of cream sauce. Strain sauce.

Beef Chili Con Carne is a dish that seems to appeal to the menfolk in any weather. It is made with two tablespoons butter, one large onion (shredded), one small can pimento, two pounds cooked beef, two cups beef stock, tablespoon chili powder, teaspoon salt and a pinch of black pepper. Melt butter, add shredded onion and chopped pimento. Fry until brown. Add meat cut into small pieces and cook for 10 minutes. Then add stock and seasonings. Simmer for an hour in a frying pan with a tight cover. Garnish with cooked rice.

Street, and the other in the red light district. Maestri's family owned property in the district, though he denies that he owned any himself. They also ran the Maestri Furniture Company (now the Eddie Furniture Company), so it was not unnatural that they should sell beds in this area.

MORE

Bob Maestri has always had money, and was generous with it when it came to helping Huey Long. When Huey was up on impeachment charges, Maestri saw at a glance that he was going to need a "campaign fund" with the state legislators if they were to vote against impeachment. So Maestri stepped in and raised the money.

A grateful Governor then appointed him Commissioner of the State Conservation Commission, a job which Maestri held for seven years, apparently with no loss to himself. In this job he had supervision of the State's oil lands, a matter now the subject of some investigation plus considerable charge and counter-charge in Louisiana.

One close friend, if not partner of Maestri's is a Greek named William Helis, whose oil operations probably have made him the richest man in Louisiana.

Another is James Brocato (alias Jimmy Moran) who served a term in Atlanta and now boasts that he is the best-dressed man in New Orleans. He is one of the big men in the city's gambling racket. Then there is Placide Frigerio, who runs the race track racket — all pals of Bob Maestri.

LOUISIANA TRIUMVIRATE

The triumvirate which has ruled Louisiana since the death of Huey consists of Maestri, Boss No. 1; Seymour Weiss, No. 2; and up until recently, puppet Governor Leche. Weiss and Maestri work in perfect harmony. Together they financed the race track and also the Pelican baseball team. Now, state and city employees are obliged to buy tickets to the ball games on opening day.

You will also find that when the Weiss-Maestri race track is in full swing, it becomes strictly illegal to place bets in the city with a bookie. Bets must be placed at the track, and anyone caught doing business in a city pool-room is hauled to jail, while the establishment may be chopped up by an efficient detective squad.

But the week the race track closes, saloons, pool-rooms and rears of restaurants put their places in order for regular business. And as soon as they have been given the O. K. by the man who makes the collections (about $50 to $60 a week for racing results service), these places open up and do a thriving business until next season when the race track opens again.

Businessmen give Maestri a big send-off as an efficient mayor, say he has kept the streets clean and emptied the garbage; but in few other cities of the United States have lotteries, pinball games, prostitution and the race track racket flourished so luxuriantly.

Regardless of praise or criticism, squat, silent Bob Maestri goes about his highly diversified business, and there is only one person in the world since Huey Long's death who can influence him. That is his mother, the former Angele Lacabe. He will defer to her when all the politicians in Louisiana will not move him.

C. C. A. EARNINGS TOTAL $32,249 IN SIX MONTHS

First Half Of 1939 Ahead Of Same Period Last Year, Paepcke Says

CHICAGO, July 15—Net earnings of Container Corporation of America in the first half of this year amounted to $32,249, equal to four cents a share on 781,253 shares outstanding. Walter P. Paepcke, president, announced that these results compare with a net loss of $120,251 in the corresponding period of 1938. The gain in the dollar volume of shipments was 20 percent over that of the first six months of 1938.

Earnings in the second quarter of this year were $8,049, equivalent to one cent a share. In the first quarter, earnings amounted to $24,199, or three cents a share.

Financial results of the corporation for the quarter, six months and 12 months, as compared with the same periods last year, were:

	1938	1939
2nd Quarter ..	*$ 67,052	$ 8,049
Six Months ..	* 120,251	32,249
12 Months ...	344,559	181,970

*Indicates loss.

Costs Provided For

In each case the results are after provision for all charges, including interest, depreciation, year-end adjustments and Federal income taxes.

There was a reduction in working capital of $162,848 compared with December 31; this was more than accounted for by the transfer to current liabilities of $430,000 for back federal and state income taxes in dispute, which will probably become payable within the next 60 days.

During the first six months of this year, funded debt was reduced $257,500. Approximately $275,000 was added in capital improvements during the same period. Cash as of June 30 amounted to $1,139,000; current assets were $5,817,800; total current liabilities $1,615,200, leaving net working capital of $4,202,600.

-STARS SAY—

For Saturday, July 15

RATHER definite progress may be made in old affairs, mainly through diligence, persistence and application, according to leading planetary configuration. Financial expansion may not be notable; in fact, with strong social, romantic and luxurious urges there may be extravagance and unusual indulgence in entertainment of good fellowship. Fireside celebrations seem paramount.

Those whose birthday it is may make steady advancement in their work by application and good judgment, with old matters especially progressing. Proportionate financial increase may be lacking. Nevertheless, there may be urges to out-of-the-ordinary expenditures in social, domestic or romantic indulgences. Merriment and romance mark the year.

A child born on this day, while steady, industrious and trustworthy should be affectionate, congenial and generous, with strong inclinations to social and romantic pastimes and indulgences. Strong ties in home and friendships make for happiness and popularity.

For Sunday, July 16

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very promising one for affairs of mystical or intellectual vocations or avocations, although there is some danger of running counter to the will of superiors, or elders. Intrigues, curious experiences and strange romantic adventures make it a memorable day.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of peculiar, baffling and surprising adventures, with sudden and strange events calling for rearranged plans and probably lavish expenditure of funds. Romance and intrigue are dominant, with commonplace affairs relegated to the background. It is an excellent time for studies of the occult, mystical, novel or scientific.

A child born on this day may be devoted to the unusual, occult, curious and strange rather than workaday interests, being dreamy, romantic and impressionable. It may write on unusual topics or adventures. It should be friendly, generous, luxuriously inclined and easy-going.

Street, and the other in the red light district. Maestri's family owned property in the district, though he denies that he owned any himself. They also ran the Maestri Furniture Company (now the Eddie Furniture Company), so it was not unnatural that they should sell beds in this area.

MORE

Bob Maestri has always had money, and was generous with it when it came to helping Huey Long. When Huey was up on impeachment charges, Maestri saw at a glance that he was going to need a "campaign fund" with the state legislators if they were to vote against impeachment. So Maestri stepped in and raised the money.

A grateful Governor then appointed him Commissioner of the State Conservation Commission, a job which Maestri held for seven years, apparently with no loss to himself. In this job he had supervision of the State's oil lands, a matter now the subject of some investigation plus considerable charge and counter-charge in Louisiana.

One close friend, if not partner of Maestri's is a Greek named William Helis, whose oil operations probably have made him the richest man in Louisiana.

Another is James Brocato (alias Jimmy Moran) who served a term in Atlanta and now boasts that he is the best-dressed man in New Orleans. He is one of the big men in the city's gambling racket. Then there is Placide Frigerio, who runs the race track racket — all pals of Bob Maestri.

LOUISIANA TRIUMVIRATE

The triumvirate which has ruled Louisiana since the death of Huey consists of Maestri, Boss No. 1; Seymour Weiss, No. 2; and up until recently, puppet Governor Leche. Weiss and Maestri work in perfect harmony. Together they financed the race track and also the Pelican baseball team. Now, state and city employees are obliged to buy tickets to the ball games on opening day.

You will also find that when the Weiss-Maestri race track is in full swing, it becomes strictly illegal to place bets in the city with a bookie. Bets must be placed at the track, and anyone caught doing business in a city pool-room is hauled to jail, while the establishment may be chopped up by an efficient detective squad.

But the week the race track closes, saloons, pool-rooms and rears of restaurants put their places in order for regular business. And as soon as they have been given the O. K. by the man who makes the collections (about $50 to $60 a week for racing results service), these places open up and do a thriving business until next season when the race track opens again.

Businessmen give Maestri a big send-off as an efficient mayor, say he has kept the streets clean and emptied the garbage; but in few other cities of the United States have lotteries, pinball games, prostitution and the race track racket flourished so luxuriantly.

Regardless of praise or criticism, squat, silent Bob Maestri goes about his highly diversified business, and there is only one person in the world since Huey Long's death who can influence him. That is his mother, the former Angele Lacabe. He will defer to her when all the politicians in Louisiana will not move him.

ELLEN TILTON HOLMSEN "stormy petrel" of eastern society, was the topic of backfence conversation at Maywood, N. Her landlady served a dispossess notice on her because she reportedly frightened off prospective buyers by wearing pajamas or shorts in public. She is pictured in one of her "shocking" costumes.

HEAVY LOAD OF STEEL TAKEN OFF HUGE TRUCK

A load of steel was being removed Saturday from a truck that left Route 22, near the Wardell home, early Friday. The truck went into a ditch and turned on its side. It could not be turned back on its wheels with the heavy load.

Millard D. Griffith, 4961 Spring Grove avenue, Cincinnati, was the driver. He was driving east when he went to sleep, he said.

C. C. A. EARNINGS TOTAL $32,249 IN SIX MONTHS

First Half Of 1939 Ahead Of Same Period Last Year, Paepcke Says

CHICAGO, July 15—Net earnings of Container Corporation of America in the first half of this year amounted to $32,249, equal to four cents a share on 781,253 shares outstanding. Walter P. Paepcke, president, announced that these results compare with a net loss of $120,251 in the corresponding period of 1938. The gain in the dollar volume of shipments was 20 percent over that of the first six months of 1938.

Earnings in the second quarter of this year were $8,049, equivalent to one cent a share. In the first quarter, earnings amounted to $24,199, or three cents a share.

Financial results of the corporation for the quarter, six months and 12 months, as compared with the same periods last year, were:

	1938	1939
2nd Quarter ..	*$ 67,052	$ 8,049
Six Months ..	* 120,251	32,249
12 Months ...	344,559	181,970

*Indicates loss.

Costs Provided For

In each case the results are after provision for all charges, including interest, depreciation, year-end adjustments and Federal income taxes.

There was a reduction in working capital of $162,848 compared with December 31; this was more than accounted for by the transfer to current liabilities of $430,000 for back federal and state income taxes in dispute, which will probably become payable within the next 60 days.

During the first six months of this year, funded debt was reduced $257,500. Approximately $275,000 was added in capital improvements during the same period. Cash as of June 30 amounted to $1,139,000; current assets were $5,817,800; total current liabilities $1,615,200, leaving net working capital of $4,202,600.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, July 15

RATHER definite progress may be made in old affairs, mainly through diligence, persistence and application, according to leading planetary configuration. Financial expansion may not be notable; in fact, with strong social, romantic and luxurious urges there may be extravagance and unusual indulgence in entertainment of good fellowship. Fireside celebrations seem paramount.

Those whose birthday it is may make steady advancement in their work by application and good judgment, with old matters especially progressing. Proportionate financial increase may be lacking. Nevertheless, there may be urges to out-of-the-ordinary expenditures in social, domestic or romantic indulgences. Merriment and romance mark the year.

A child born on this day, while steady, industrious and trustworthy should be affectionate, congenial and generous, with strong inclinations to social and romantic pastimes and indulgences. Strong ties in home and friendships make for happiness and popularity.

For Sunday, July 16

MURDER TRIAL, TO BE MONDAY, FIRST SINCE '32

Prosecution Of Kidney Cases Recalled As Court Prepares To Try Lonnie Toles

LIFE TERM IS POSSIBLE

Five Days May Be Needed For Action; State Charges Robbery Motive

Common Pleas court was ready Saturday for the opening of its first murder case since the John Kidney death trials of 1932. Lloyd Alonzo Toles, Circleville ex-convict, will face Judge Meeker Terwilliger's court Monday at 9 a. m. to face charges of second degree murder in the stabbing of Noble Crawford, of Haynes, Hocking county. Toles, defended by Attorney C. A. Leist, has declared his innocence.

The Kidney trials, which followed the murder of the aged Monroe township farmer by a band of men trying to find an alleged hidden treasure, resulted in four men, one a white man and the other three Negroes, going to the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary. Two others, both Negroes, are serving life terms in the penitentiary now for their parts in the crime.

Robbery Motive Advanced

Toles is charged with stabbing Crawford to death with the state citing robbery as the motive. Although Louis Crawford, father of the slain man, charged first degree murder in his complaint, the grand jury indicted Toles for second degree murder, punishable by life imprisonment.

Toles was returned to Circleville in February after serving time in the Lima State hospital for the criminally insane. He was released from custody there by authorities who declared he "was restored to reason". He had been arrested on a robbery charge prior to commitment to Lima.

The problem of seating the jury will be the first one facing the court. Thirty prospective jurors have been called to report Monday morning. Just how long the trial will last is uncertain. Court attaches believe that five days will probably be required. The state has already called 32 witnesses, while the defense has not indicated how many it will use.

The prosecution will be in charge of Prosecuting Attorney George E. Gerhardt, who will be assisted by his father, Attorney Charles Gerhardt.

Surviving are three children, Mrs. W. M. Kinney and Mrs. Edwin Wilson, both of Circleville, and Ned Karshner, of Columbus; two sisters, Mrs. Ella Reynolds, of Circleville, and Rebecca Strawser, of Adelphi, and two brothers, Wallace Strawser, Adelphi, and Charles Strawser, Waynesfield, O.

Mrs. Karshner was a member of the Evangelical church. Funeral services will be held in the home Monday at 3 p. m. with the Rev. S. S. Davis officiating. Burial will be in Adelphi cemetery in charge of the W. H. Albaugh Co.

FILIPINOS MEET AUSSIES IN NET SERIES JOUSTS

LONG BEACH, Cal., July 15—Australia's high-powered Davis Cup team today was expected to complete its sweep of the Davis Cup interzone matches with the Philippine island net stars.

Felisicimo Ampon halted yesterday's rout for a time with a courageous stand against Australia's Jack Bromwich, finally falling to defeat 6-8, 6-8, 3-6.

Adrian Quist sailed through Amado Sanchez, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, to sweep the two singles and clinch the match for the Aussies.

Ampon actually had Bromwich on the short end in the first and third sets until his legs began to wobble and the Australian champion pulled out of the hole.

With the hope of seeing Ampon put up another stiff fight, a full crowd was expected today for the doubles.

WORK PROJECTS STOPPED AFTER PITCHED BATTLE

ect. The first with an almost equal number of demonstrations was staged at the noon-hour shift. At that time Mrs. Margaret Schoenfeldt, 23, suffered a stab wound.

The police then laid down the first gas barrage in escorting the 119 women who refused to join the W.P.A. strike, against increased hours and no increase in pay.

The crowd dispersed, coughing and choking, but regathered with reinforcements last evening at the close of work.

As police led the first of the women workers from the building, an angry howl went up and the throng surged forward. They broke past police lines, rushed against the row of armored cars and drove toward the women and their escorts.

Sticks and stones sailed through the air. Police claimed they spotted "sharpshooters" on surrounding rooftops, some armed with guns, and the remainder with supplies of hand-thrown missiles that they hurled over the heads of the eddying throng below.

Facing an almost solid wall of raging humanity, police cleared a temporary path out of the building with a barrage of tear gas, they dashed into the lane that opened as the crowd fell back.

But as the stifling fumes rolled away the opening closed up once more, before the officers had a chance to boost their charges into waiting streetcars. It was then the firing of guns began.

Riot Guns Heard

Mingled with the spat of revolvers was the deeper boom of riot guns from the armored cars. Dozens of windows shattered and crashed unnoticed in the melee.

The main body of strikers melted before the hail of bullets. As police reserves battered their way through from the outside, the thousands turned and fled, screaming in teror.

The more hardy, however, overcame their panic and formed in knots under streetlamps nearby and it was four hours before the district was cleared entirely.

JAPANESE WARN OF "OPERATIONS" AT CHINA PORTS

SHANGHAI, July 15 — Foreign residents and warships were warned by the Japanese naval command that "operations" will begin Tuesday morning against the ports of Swabue and Hingswa.

The warning said all foreigners must get out by 8 a. m. Tokyo time Tuesday.

Swabue is only 65 miles northeast of Hongkong. Japanese Domei news agency dispatches said Hingswa is in southeastern Shantung province.

TRAFFIC ON N. W. DELAYED; TRAIN WRECKS MACHINE

IRONTON, July 15—Traffic on the Norfolk and Western railroad was delayed for several hours today by the derailment of eight coal cars when a locomotive hit and demolished an automobile at a crossing.

The car stalled on the tracks and Bert Haskins, of Coal Grove, the owner, tried in vain to flag the approaching train. He was uninjured.

TRAINING PLANE CRASH FATAL TO TWO ARMY MEN

NEW YORK, July 15 — Army officials today were investigating the crash of a basic training plane which carried two officers of the U. S. army aviation reserves to instant death in Bethpage state park. The plane went into a spin about 800 feet up.

The victims, making a routine training flight, were Maj. Paul C. Durbin, 45, and Lieut. Allen W. Lewis, 28, both of New York.

SCANDAL TRAPS HUEY'S DOCTOR

Clarence Lorio Named With Smith And Caldwell In Fraud Indictments

torney Charles A. Byrne, was quoted saying:

"I did it for the university and I simply made a mistake."

Indictments against Dr. Smith, Caldwell and Jackson had been anticipated but indictment of Dr. Lorio, who was one of the attending physicians throughout that night in September of 1935 when Huey fought his losing battle to death, left Louisiana gaping much as it did when defalcations at the university first became known.

Dr. Lorio is a state senator. He is medical director for Louisiana State university at a $6,000 per year salary; is visiting physician for the Grenwell Springs tubercular sanatorium at $2,600; is surgeon for the Louisiana State penitentiary at another $2,400 a year salary and is president of the State Medical association of Louisiana.

Dr. Lorio, free today on $12,500 bond, was indicted twice — once with George Caldwell for embezzlement and once for receiving embezzled perty.

FUGITIVE FROM KANSAS PRISON NAMED SLAYER

CHICAGO, July 15—State and Chicago police today hunted an escaped Oklahoma convict as the torture-slayer of the second motorist he has kidnaped in his wild flight for freedom.

The victim of the killing was tentatively identified as William S. Hamilton, 23, of Arkansas City, Kan., and a recent graduate of the University of Kansas. His body was found in a roadside ditch yesterday near Ringwood in McHenry county, west of Chicago.

Stripped to his underwear and socks, the young man had been battered on the head and shot behind the ear. Burns, apparently from a cigarette, dotted his face and body.

Hunted as the killer is Jack Russell, who was reported heading for Chicago and his wife, Mary, after breaking out of the state penitentiary at McAlester, Okla., on Wednesday.

Russell, who was serving a 10-year-term for robbery, was said to be seeking revenge on his wife for aiding police in apprehending him, and a police guard was established at her Chicago home.

Shortly after his escape Russell kidnaped R. E. Brown, 69-year-old McAlester photographer, who drove the desperado at gun-point to the vicinity of Pittsburg, Kan.

BOY, 15, NAMED AS THIEF IN $174 PAYROLL GRAB

RUMORS PREVAIL ZOG'S LIFE MAY BE ATTEMPTED

STOCKHOLM, July 15—A plot against his life, according to rumors here, today caused Achmed Zog, former King of Albania, to postpone his scheduled departure from Riga, Latvia, for Stockholm.

He will be brought to Stockholm in a special plane Monday, the reports said.

Dispatches from Riga, however, said Zog's sisters' fear of sea-sickness owing to rough weather in the Baltic caused postponement of the trip.

DIVING BELL TO BE USED DURING SQUALUS WORK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. July 15—The diving bell, used to rescue the 33 survivors of the submarine Squalus, today loomed as an aid in the salvage of the sunken submersible and her cargo of 26 dead.

Emerging from the cloud of disappointment which descended on the salvage fleet after the nullification of their 52 days of careful rescue preparations, naval officials drew up a tentative plan of salvage in which the diving bell played a prominent role.

With salvage operations at a standstill during the rough weather which closed in after the partly raised Squalus plunged back to the ocean bottom in a tangle of airlines and cables, salvage directors considered using the diving bell to send divers down into the interior of the stricken craft to set air valves for blowing out some of the water flooding the aft compartments of the submersible. Blowing of sufficient water might enable raising of the submarine with the aid of its own buoyancy.

Preliminary shallow dives have shown, however, that the 14,000 feet of cables and air lines attached to the re-sunken Squalus are so badly tangled that it will take at least a week until a definite plan of procedure can be selected.

STERLING MAN, HERO OF WORLD WAR, GIVEN JOB

Lowell R. Hollingshead, of Mt. Sterling, one of the survivors of the famous "Lost Battalion", has been appointed an Ohio penitentiary guard and will begin work Aug. 1.

Hollingshead is a personal friend of Gov. John Bricker.

It was Hollingshead who carried the German army's demand to the battalion to surrender. This demand was refused. He was captured when trying to sneak through the enemy lines to the allied forces. The batallion, in advancing, moved too fast and was surrounded by German forces.

Hollingshead refused to give any information to the Germans. With the surrender demand was a note which said, "Please treat the bearer, Lowell R. Hollingshead, as an honorable man. He is quite a soldier. We envy you."

THREE KILLED AS COAST GUARD PLANE CRASHES

NEW YORK, July 15 — Three persons perished and two were injured today when a coast guard plane crashed and sunk in the Atlantic, Mackay Radio reported. Coast guard headquarters here refused to give out any information about the tragedy. Names of persons involved and other details were not available.

WILL NAMES SONS

Two sons are beneficiaries under the will of Mrs. Margaret A. McGath Cherry, Deercreek township, admitted to probate Friday. They are Samuel Cherry, Mt. Sterling Route 2, and Alfred Cherry, Williamsport Route 1. The estate is estimated at $1,000.

bank for internation settlements in Basle precisely to prevent it falling into German hands. The B. I. S., lacking storing facilities, deposited the gold with the Bank of England. After the German occupation of Prague in March, the Bank of England, despite vigorous protests by friends of Czechoslovakia, turned the gold over to the German government.

Arms Plants Valued

Next comes the enormous quantity of Czech arms and munitions, which Hitler listed publicly, and which are estimated now as worth around $150,000,000. The "Deutsche Wehr," German army publication, lists six Czech arms factories and three munitions works as among the principal military assets which fell to the Reich. Including Skola, they normally employ 62,900 workers. These works had a capital value of around $1,000,000,000.

The supplies of industrial raw materials seized by Germany are estimated by British experts as worth around $1,350,000,000. An unknown quantity of machinery has been taken from Czech and Slovak factories and shipped to Germany. All three countries, Bohemia Moravia and Slovakia, have now been stripped of their reserves of grain, Slovakia alone having sent 27,000 carloads of wheat to Germany.

For some of this loot a nominal payment was made, but much of it was either confiscated outright, or paid for with notes not intended to be redeemed. A portion of this as well as other propety belonged to Jews, and their total holdings, estimated at from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000, have been seized without pretence of payment.

Nothing has been overlooked. "Now," reports a former citizen of Prague, "the Nazis have begun to steal the most valuable things in the art museums and castles. Ten of the finest Goeblin tapestries of the old Prague castle of the Bohemian kings has been transported to Berlin."

Altogether the value of the plunder taken from Czechoslovakia is put at a minimum figure of $3,000,000,000.

Hence Europe has drawn the lesson that Nazi Germany sincerely believes in the profitability of conquest. It may be true that Czechoslovakia in the long run will not profit the Reich, but it certainly has done so for the moment.

The mine consists of two perpendicular shafts, one used for air and the other for men and materials, and a single long tunnel. Of the nine who escaped, six were either on the lift or near the foot of the shaft.

They are Roy Baker, William Reynolds, Joe Thomas, Henry DePriest, Everett Hibbs and Ed Mays.

The other three were members of the crew in the "pardon" or terminal where the mine machinery is located, about 1,000 feet along the entry. They are Dennis Walker, Ernest Johnson and Douglas Cates.

Power Shut Off

Electricity in the mine was shut off as soon as the blast happened to prevent another explosion and the latter three did not reach the bottom of the shaft for nearly three hours as they had crawled the entire distance with their noses close to the ground.

WORK PROJECTS STOPPED AFTER PITCHED BATTLE

Minneapolis Mayor Declares He Fears Civil War If Trouble Continues

ect. The first with an almost equal number of demonstrations was staged at the noon-hour shift. At that time Mrs. Margaret Schoenfeldt, 23, suffered a stab wound.

The police then laid down the first gas barrage in escorting the 119 women who refused to join the W.P.A. strike, against increased hours and no increase in pay.

The crowd dispersed, coughing and choking, but regathered with reinforcements last evening at the close of work.

As police led the first of the women workers from the building, an angry howl went up and the throng surged forward. They broke past police lines, rushed against the row of armored cars and drove toward the women and their escorts.

Sticks and stones sailed through the air. Police claimed they spotted "sharpshooters" on surrounding rooftops, some armed with guns, and the remainder with supplies of hand-thrown missiles that they hurled over the heads of the eddying throng below.

Facing an almost solid wall of raging humanity, police cleared a temporary path out of the building with a barrage of tear gas, they dashed into the lane that opened as the crowd fell back.

But as the stifling fumes rolled away the opening closed up once more, before the officers had a chance to boost their charges into waiting streetcars. It was then the firing of guns began.

Riot Guns Heard

Mingled with the spat of revolvers was the deeper boom of riot guns from the armored cars. Dozens of windows shattered and crashed unnoticed in the melee.

The main body of strikers melted before the hail of bullets. As police reserves battered their way through from the outside, the thousands turned and fled, screaming in teror.

The more hardy, however, overcame their panic and formed in knots under streetlamps nearby and it was four hours before the district was cleared entirely.

SHANGHAI, July 15 — Foreign residents and warships were warned by the Japanese naval command that "operations" will begin Tuesday morning against the ports of Swabue and Hingswa.

The warning said all foreigners must get out by 8 a. m. Tokyo time Tuesday.

Swabue is only 65 miles northeast of Hongkong. Japanese Domei news agency dispatches said Hingswa is in southeastern Shantung province.

TRAFFIC ON N. W. DELAYED; TRAIN WRECKS MACHINE

IRONTON, July 15—Traffic on the Norfolk and Western railroad was delayed for several hours today by the derailment of eight coal cars when a locomotive hit and demolished an automobile at a crossing.

The car stalled on the tracks and Bert Haskins, of Coal Grove, the owner, tried in vain to flag the approaching train. He was uninjured.

TRAINING PLANE CRASH FATAL TO TWO ARMY MEN

NEW YORK, July 15 — Army officials today were investigating the crash of a basic training plane which carried two officers of the U. S. army aviation reserves to instant death in Bethpage state park. The plane went into a spin about 800 feet up.

The victims, making a routine training flight, were Maj. Paul C. Durbin, 45, and Lieut. Allen W. Lewis, 28, both of New York.

SCANDAL TRAPS HUEY'S DOCTOR

Clarence Lorio Named With Smith And Caldwell In Fraud Indictments

torney Charles A. Byrne, was quoted saying:

"I did it for the university and I simply made a mistake."

Indictments against Dr. Smith, Caldwell and Jackson had been anticipated but indictment of Dr. Lorio, who was one of the attending physicians throughout that night in September of 1935 when Huey fought his losing battle to death, left Louisiana gaping much as it did when defalcations at the university first became known.

Dr. Lorio is a state senator. He is medical director for Louisiana State university at a $6,000 per year salary; is visiting physician for the Grenwell Springs tubercular sanatorium at $2,600; is surgeon for the Louisiana State penitentiary at another $2,400 a year salary and is president of the State Medical association of Louisiana.

Dr. Lorio, free today on $12,500 bond, was indicted twice — once with George Caldwell for embezzlement and once for receiving embezzled perty.

FUGITIVE FROM KANSAS PRISON NAMED SLAYER

CHICAGO, July 15—State and Chicago police today hunted an escaped Oklahoma convict as the torture-slayer of the second motorist he has kidnaped in his wild flight for freedom.

The victim of the killing was tentatively identified as William S. Hamilton, 23, of Arkansas City, Kan., and a recent graduate of the University of Kansas. His body was found in a roadside ditch yesterday near Ringwood in McHenry county, west of Chicago.

Stripped to his underwear and socks, the young man had been battered on the head and shot behind the ear. Burns, apparently from a cigarette, dotted his face and body.

Hunted as the killer is Jack Russell, who was reported heading for Chicago and his wife, Mary, after breaking out of the state penitentiary at McAlester, Okla., on Wednesday.

Russell, who was serving a 10-year-term for robbery, was said to be seeking revenge on his wife for aiding police in apprehending him, and a police guard was established at her Chicago home.

Shortly after his escape Russell kidnaped R. E. Brown, 69-year-old McAlester photographer, who drove the desperado at gun-point to the vicinity of Pittsburg, Kan.

RUMORS PREVAIL ZOG'S LIFE MAY BE ATTEMPTED

STOCKHOLM, July 15—A plot against his life, according to rumors here, today caused Achmed Zog, former King of Albania, to postpone his scheduled departure from Riga, Latvia, for Stockholm.

He will be brought to Stockholm in a special plane Monday, the reports said.

Dispatches from Riga, however, said Zog's sisters' fear of sea-sickness owing to rough weather in the Baltic caused postponement of the trip.

DIVING BELL TO BE USED DURING SQUALUS WORK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. July 15—The diving bell, used to rescue the 33 survivors of the submarine Squalus, today loomed as an aid in the salvage of the sunken submersible and her cargo of 26 dead.

Emerging from the cloud of disappointment which descended on the salvage fleet after the nullification of their 52 days of careful rescue preparations, naval officials drew up a tentative plan of salvage in which the diving bell played a prominent role.

With salvage operations at a standstill during the rough weather which closed in after the partly raised Squalus plunged back to the ocean bottom in a tangle of airlines and cables, salvage directors considered using the diving bell to send divers down into the interior of the stricken craft to set air valves for blowing out some of the water flooding the aft compartments of the submersible. Blowing of sufficient water might enable raising of the submarine with the aid of its own buoyancy.

Preliminary shallow dives have shown, however, that the 14,000 feet of cables and air lines attached to the re-sunken Squalus are so badly tangled that it will take at least a week until a definite plan of procedure can be selected.

STERLING MAN, HERO OF WORLD WAR, GIVEN JOB

Lowell R. Hollingshead, of Mt. Sterling, one of the survivors of the famous "Lost Battalion", has been appointed an Ohio penitentiary guard and will begin work Aug. 1.

Hollingshead is a personal friend of Gov. John Bricker.

It was Hollingshead who carried the German army's demand to the battalion to surrender. This demand was refused. He was captured when trying to sneak through the enemy lines to the allied forces. The batallion, in advancing, moved too fast and was surrounded by German forces.

Hollingshead refused to give any information to the Germans. With the surrender demand was a note which said, "Please treat the bearer, Lowell R. Hollingshead, as an honorable man. He is quite a soldier. We envy you."

THREE KILLED AS COAST GUARD PLANE CRASHES

Coast guard headquarters here refused to give out any information about the tragedy. Names of persons involved and other details were not available.

bank for internation settlements in Basle precisely to prevent it falling into German hands. The B. I. S., lacking storing facilities, deposited the gold with the Bank of England. After the German occupation of Prague in March, the Bank of England, despite vigorous protests by friends of Czechoslovakia, turned the gold over to the German government.

Arms Plants Valued

Next comes the enormous quantity of Czech arms and munitions, which Hitler listed publicly, and which are estimated now as worth around $150,000,000. The "Deutsche Wehr," German army publication, lists six Czech arms factories and three munitions works as among the principal military assets which fell to the Reich. Including Skola, they normally employ 62,900 workers. These works had a capital value of around $1,000,000,000.

The supplies of industrial raw materials seized by Germany are estimated by British experts as worth around $1,350,000,000. An unknown quantity of machinery has been taken from Czech and Slovak factories and shipped to Germany. All three countries, Bohemia Moravia and Slovakia, have now been stripped of their reserves of grain, Slovakia alone having sent 27,000 carloads of wheat to Germany.

For some of this loot a nominal payment was made, but much of it was either confiscated outright, or paid for with notes not intended to be redeemed. A portion of this as well as other propety belonged to Jews, and their total holdings, estimated at from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000, have been seized without pretence of payment.

Nothing has been overlooked. "Now," reports a former citizen of Prague, "the Nazis have begun to steal the most valuable things in the art museums and castles. Ten of the finest Goeblin tapestries of the old Prague castle of the Bohemian kings has been transported to Berlin."

Altogether the value of the plunder taken from Czechoslovakia is put at a minimum figure of $3,000,000,000.

Hence Europe has drawn the lesson that Nazi Germany sincerely believes in the profitability of conquest. It may be true that Czechoslovakia in the long run will not profit the Reich, but it certainly has done so for the moment.

HOPE LOST FOR 27 MEN IN MINE

would know was already on the way.

The mine consists of two perpendicular shafts, one used for air and the other for men and materials, and a single long tunnel. Of the nine who escaped, six were either on the lift or near the foot of the shaft.

They are Roy Baker, William Reynolds, Joe Thomas, Henry DePriest, Everett Hibbs and Ed Mays.

The other three were members of the crew in the "pardon" or terminal where the mine machinery is located, about 1,000 feet along the entry. They are Dennis Walker, Ernest Johnson and Douglas Cates.

Power Shut Off

Electricity in the mine was shut off as soon as the blast happened to prevent another explosion and the latter three did not reach the bottom of the shaft for nearly three hours as they had crawled the entire distance with their noses close to the ground.
